Kasaysayan Ng Daigdig.A US Senate race in Kansas could be contested by the country's first transgender candidate. Erwin Lee, a former postal worker and a Democrat, said on Monday he would file to run against the Republican incumbent Jeff Colyer. If Mr Lee wins the seat, it would be Kansas's first election won by a candidate who identifies as transgender. A previous attempt to put a transgender candidate on the ballot in Kansas in 2018 was blocked by the state's Democratic party. The filing, which is required in federal races and open congressional seats, is similar to a declaration of candidacy. It names the candidate, the party and the office. Mr Lee was born Erwin Pantle, and lived in the Kansas City area for several years. He came out as transgender when he was 29 years old, and changed his name to Erwin Lee about a year ago.

"I think the country needs to see that people can come together, and that can happen as long as everyone is equal," he said. Mr Lee, 52, is currently campaigning for the Kansas Senate seat, but the Kansas secretary of state is still awaiting his petition signatures. Mr Lee's lawyer, Seth Stein, said he would not comment on the race until after his client's name has been certified. "It is his plan to be on the ballot and we are going to follow that plan," he said. The election could be critical for the progress of transgender
