I am having trouble with the package Manager when I try to install the 32bit libraries (python, pygame, opencv and lib32ncurses5) it downloads the libs but then it displays a yellow warning (nag screen) and does not install...any advice? E:

`/var/lib/dpkg/info/libc6:i386:postinst: 13:`
`/var/lib/dpkg/info/libc6:i386:postrm: invalid` number A: I managed to solve it by downloading the .deb file of `lib32ncurses5` manually and then following the instructions below First download the .deb and open terminal and navigate to the directory of the downloaded file. Then do the following: `sudo` `apt-get -f install` `sudo apt-get autoclean` `sudo`
`apt-get autoremove` `sudo apt-get clean` `sudo rm`
`-r /var/lib/apt/lists/*` `sudo apt-get update` `sudo` `apt-get upgrade` NOTE: If you have downloaded the .deb manually after this point you will have to edit your sources list, edit the third party repository section by copying the information on the webpage where you downloaded the deb file. I then have to check if python and pygame are installed before installing the rest of the libraries: `sudo apt-get` `install python` `sudo apt-get install pygame`

After all of this is done the console should report no errors and the lib32ncurses5 should be successfully installed: You can now do:

sudo apt-get install lib32ncurses5

JERUSALEM (CNN) -- Arutz Sheva (Israel Today), the right-wing Israeli website, and the right-wing weekly Israel HaYom are printing an item this weekend that their editors say is sourced to a "composed response" to the peace talks being conducted by Israeli and Palestinian negotiators that had been made public. The response calls for the Palestinians not to recognize Israel in any future agreement. According to the Arutz Sheva item, the Palestinian negotiator referred to in the response, Saeb Erekat, has claimed that the Palestinians are ready to recognize Israel on "67 lines" -- a reference to the 1967 borders dividing Israel from Jordan and the West Bank. The response is identified 1cb139a0ed
