Q: Split text in a div with respect to words I have a div with text Item 1 Item 2 Item 3 Item 4 Item 5 Item 6 Item 7 Item 8 Item 9 I want to split the div text with respect to words. Like if there are 5 words then show 1 line. In this case the output should be Item 1 Item 2 Item 3 Item 4 So it should split with respect to words and not with respect to character. A: var text = document.getElementById("divid").innerHTML; var splitted = text.split(" "); var result = []; for(var i = 0; i = splitted.length) result.push(""); } console.log(result); Q: Run command on background when ending/exit vim I want to do this, I just wanna put a bit of text into history when I exit vim: #{start vim} #{start vim_file} // do stuff #{end vim_file} #{end vim}

We don't just provide a simple download service, we give you access to great iPhone and iPad games that can only be downloaded from the App Store. Which comes first - the chicken or the egg? Probably neither. The chicken came first, then the egg. The question of which is older is very strange. My take is that the chicken arrived first, and then the egg came along. However, the egg did not arrive last. The egg came later. For two reasons: 1. an egg doesn't come from nowhere. Something must be inside. And the first thing that comes is the egg. The egg does not come from the bird. 2. a chicken doesn't lay eggs just for the fun of it. It lays eggs because it knows that they are food. It is a food thing. This, of course, doesn't
